DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Young (U.S. Patent No. 6,567,011).

Regarding claims 1, 5, 9, and 10 Young teaches a plurality of keys closing switch contacts (reference numeral SXX in Figure 15B) corresponding thereto when pressed down; a microcomputer (reference numeral U1 in Figure 15B) coupled to said keys for generating a remote-control signal in response to pressing each of said keys; and a transmission circuit (reference numeral IR1 in Figure 15A) coupled to said microcomputer for transmitting a remote-control signal, wherein the microcomputer is operable to: be shifted to a test mode when a specific key of said keys is pressed (e.g. "<<Magic>> 4-4-3" of column 9 lines 9-23); store (via ROM in U1 of Figure 15B and described in column 12 lines 65-67) an indication of opening and closing of said keys and their associated contacts for testing of said keys (e.g. verification of ID codes associated with each key of column 9 lines 9-23), said keys closed after the test mode is initiated; and transfer the indication of opening and closing of said keys as a remote-control test signal to said transmission circuit (e.g. blinking LED of column 9 lines 9-23) by delaying transfer (e.g. 0.5 second delays of column 9 lines 9-23) of said indications until said testing is completed (e.g. release of each key in column 9 lines 9-23).

Regarding claims 2, 4, 6, and 8, Young teaches that said transmission circuit transmits the signal as one of an infrared ray signal (via IR1 in Figure 15A) and a radio signal.

Regarding claims 3 and 7, Young teaches that the remote-control test signal additionally carries an identification signal of said microcomputer (e.g. "unique IR data output" of column 8 lines 52-65).

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

4. In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., not transmitting the test signals until all the buttons have been depressed) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993). While the applicant believes that the claim explicitly recites that testing is performed on keys, the claim language does not reflect as much. At best the claim language only provides that there is more than one key and not that each key is depressed, and thereby tested. Upon further consideration of the cited reference the examiner has provided an updated office action which meets the limitations of the claimed invention as amended when the claims are given the broadest reasonable interpretation.

Conclusion

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
